Ambition:

In architecture I am interested in big and complex buildings and interior spaces. Size, proportion and the human scale are key elements in my designs. In my designs I work on different scales from urban to the detailed interior. My option is that architecture has to be built for the users in the building and the public in de direct environment. To archive this, I work in (eye level) drawings and models. Interesting to me, apart from the praxeological issues of a project, is the research into shape and form, and how the user experiences the space. I am interested not only in architecture but also in objects and (art)installations.
